MARCH IS SOCIAL WORK MONTH

31st March 2023

National Social Work Month, observed throughout March, uplifts the social workers of our country and celebrates their constant contributions to our society. Something that makes National Social Work month extra fun is the yearly themes. Each year's theme is based on a social issue that NASW wants to bring to light. Some of the biggest past themes include HIV/AIDS, children in poverty, racial and ethnic harmony, and aging parents. The very first NSWM was themed "Listen To The Children." These campaigns make every National Social Work Month more educational.

Army Institute of Management & Technology NSS Unit volunteers decided to donate everyday necessary supplies to the children of Udayan care. The Jagshanti Udayan Ghar (Home) was inaugurated in 2003 by the Governor of Uttar Pradesh at the time, Prof. Vishnu Kant Shastri. A full facility to serve orphan or destitute children out of family care and also to serve the underprivileged community, Udayan Care decided to buy a larger property in Greater Noida. The NSS volunteers interacted with the youngsters about their life and gave them best wishes for their future.
