

MEDICAL CAMP

Date: 31 August 2024

Location: Army Institute of Management and Technology, Greater Noida

Organizers: ISR Club and Kailash Hospital

On August 31, 2024, the ISR Club, in collaboration with Kailash Hospital, organized a dedicated medical camp for the Army Institute of Management and Technology in Greater Noida. This initiative aimed to tackle the specific health issues faced by students, offer vital medical services and enhance the overall well-being of the student community. A team of 12 healthcare professionals, including general practitioners and specialists, provided free consultations.

The main objective of the camp was to carry out routine health screenings to identify potential health issues early, such as high blood pressure, diabetes, and nutritional deficiencies, and to ensure that students receive timely advice and referrals if needed.

The event lasted from 10 AM to 3 PM, providing plenty of time for students to take advantage of all the services offered.

Student feedback was very positive, with many expressing appreciation for the accessibility of medical services, and they also appreciated the chance to discuss their health issues in a supportive setting.

The ISR Club expresses its sincere gratitude to Kailash Hospital for its substantial contribution and support in making this event a success. We also appreciate the efforts of the healthcare professionals and volunteers who devoted their time and expertise to helping the students.
